EmWat kit being unloaded at Bandanaraike International Airport in Colombo on New Year's Eve

Tsunami Relief

The catastrophe in Asia made a deep impression on all of us. During a very hectic period Scan-Water supplied water equipment to the international organisations through NOREPS (Norwegian Emergency Preparedness System) and the OCHA/WFP pre-stocks in Brindisi and Phnom Pehn.

The Norwegian NGO FORUT, operating in Sri Lanka, acted fast to the problems in Sri Lanka and was able to put four EmWat 4000 kits in operation within a week after the wave. One unit in Tirrukkovil is serving 6 500 people with safe drinking water every day.

Development In Kwa Zulu Natal

In 2001 Kwa Zulu Natal was hit by a cholera epidemic. With a grant from the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the Norwegian People's Aid (Folkehjelpen) seven EmWat 4000 Kits were deployed in the Eshowe area. Scan-Water has been back to the area several times organising refurbishment of the purification units, workshop-training with local staff. More necessary equipment and storage tanks has been installed as well. Senzokuhle CBO Network in Eshowe has been our local partner throughout the project.
